THIS STRANGE LAND

1
Let me tell you about my dream,
When I sailed along a lemonade stream,
In a boat made of lettuce and sails made of cheese,
To a land where chocolate grows on trees.

This strange land is ruled by a queen.
She lives in a castle made of ice cream.
The castle tower isn't made of stone,
It's a delicious, yellow ice cream cone.

The queen's crown is made of gold,
Her clothes are soft, white silk, I'm told.
"Welcome!" says the queen to me,
"Help yourself to food. It's free."

The chairs and tables aren't made of wood,
They're made of cookies. They're very good,
Sugar is used for windows, not glass,
The fields are made of green leather, not grass.

1 Read. Number the paragraphs in order.

An Egg-cellent Painting!

- This is how all artists used to make their paint many years ago. These days, paint can be bought in stores, but some artists still like to make paint this way. It's called "tempera" and it's made with eggs!
- Some water is added to make the paint easier to use.
- Next, a pigment is added. Pigments give paints their color. Pigments of different colors are made from plants, precious stones, and metals. Even insects are collected, dried, and then ground to make colorful powders.
- Tempera paint has to be used very quickly. Can you guess why?
- The pigment is mixed with the egg yolk to make a paste. The paste is ground until it's very smooth.
- First, an egg is broken and removed from its shell. Only the yolk, the yellow part, is used to make paint, so all of the white part has to be removed. Then, the egg yolk is cleaned very carefully.

2 Write T (true) or F (false).

- Egg white is used to make paint.  F
- Insects are used to give paint its color.
- The pigment can be precious stone.
- Tempera paint can be mixed with water.
- The egg shell needs to be cleaned.
- Artists used to make their paint from eggs.

3 Discuss.

Why do you think some artists still make paint this way instead of buying it?

4 Find Out More!

Research one of the following: cotton, tea, coffee. Then choose another product to find out more about. How is it made?
